SUMMARY OF FODDER CROPS

Kale is a well proven fodder crop providing high yields of green fodder with a flexible utilization period that can stretch from August right through to March. It is a biennial so in the first year only leafy material will be grown.

Varieties:

- Keeper: A high yielding winter hardy, high leaf stemmed variety with good nutritional value.
- Caledonian: Good yield from a short, winter hardy variety. High leaf to stem ratio.

Fodder Rape is a popular forage crop with many livestock farmers due to its ease of production, the flexibility of its sowing date and its palatability at feeding time. Not as winter hardy as kale.

Varieties:

- Gorilla: Hybrid variety with very good regrowth potential. High yield with good leaf to stem ratio. Quite good resistance to clubroot.
- Fontan: High yielding medium/tall variety with good leaf to stem ratio.

Red Start (HYBRID OF KALE AND FORAGE RAPE)

Redstart is a cross between Kale and Forage Rape.

This hybrid Rape/Kale brassica can be mature in 90 days from sowing and be utilised from October onwards as a high energy protein crop for out-wintering cattle or sheep. The Forage Rape genes allow the crop to grow
